From Voices to Evidence

Over the past months, project partners have carried out national field research to better understand the needs, challenges, and aspirations of young women aged 15 to 25 with a migration background.

Thanks to this collective effort, we gathered:

- 209 questionnaire responses
- 42 in-depth interviews

These insights show that young women with migration background across Europe are highly resilient, motivated and multilingual. However, language barriers, discrimination and limited institutional support still affect their integration.

With strong interest in leadership, citizenship, and entrepreneurship, they need more opportunities for communication training, confidence-building, and community engagement.

Teens2Queens remains committed to empowering young women and supporting their active participation in society.

Transnational Meeting in Florence

Just a few days before Christmas, the Teens2Queens partners met in Florence, hosted by our Italian partner Consorzio CO&SO.

This meeting marked a major milestone: moving from research to action. Based on the collected data, the partnership officially launched the design of the Teens2Queens training programme aimed at trainers and adolescent girls and young women with a migration background.

FROM RESEARCH TO ACTION

Six months into the Erasmus+ project Teens2Queens, empowering adolescent girls and young women with a migration background across Europe remains at the heart of our commitment!

What's next?

The Teens2Queens training will focus on strengthening personal, civic, and entrepreneurial skills, equipping girls and women with practical tools to better support young women's empowerment. This free and accessible training will be offered to 80 young women with a migration background in Austria, France, Italy and Sweden in autumn 2026. But before its official launch, an e-learning platform will be developed and a pilot training programme will be organised in Romania in the next few months.
